PREFACE

IN content this is a mixed volume, since it offers texts of the New Testament and manuscripts of both new and already known works of Greek literature as well as a selection of especially interesting documents. The lion's share of the editorial work has been done by Dr. Rea (29 out of the total of 50 items); 12 papyrus manuscripts of Apollonius Rhodius are published by Professor Kingston; the two New Testament manuscripts and 5 of the documents have been prepared by Mr. P. Parsons; and a Thucydides and a documentary application have been studied by Mr. L. Ingrams. Detailed responsibility for individual texts is set out in the Table of Papyri.

The editors are happy to acknowledge much help from others. The pieces of Apollonius Rhodius were identified by Mr. E. Lobel. Valuable suggestions for the understanding of 2687 have been contributed by Miss A. M. Dale and Professor R. P. Winnington-Ingram, and the time and thought given to the elucidation of its difficulties by the latter have been particularly prized. It is hoped that other obligations are given their due at the proper occasion.

The new manuscripts of Apollonius were assembled some eight years ago. Since work on them began, further fragments of this author have been identified (including pieces in the same hand as 2694, see p. 50 n.). No doubt pieces will continue to be found. But the work done by Professor Kingston makes a substantial contribution to the textual problems associated with this author's verses, and it is not desirable to hold up what has already been achieved in the interests of a probably unattainable completeness.

Dr. Rea has added the preparation of the Indexes to the other obligations for which the general editors would like to record their gratitude. They would like also to express their thanks to Messrs. Clark for coping handsomely and accurately with a complicated piece of printing; and to Miss Mary Cosh for typing the texts of the Apollonius Rhodius pieces.

NOTE ON THE METHOD OF PUBLICATION AND ABBREVIATIONS

THE method of publication follows that adopted in Part XXXIII. As there, the dots indicating letters unread and, within square brackets, the estimated number of lost letters are printed slightly below the line. In the new literary texts, corrections and annotations which appear to be in a different hand from that of the original scribe are printed in thick type. Non-literary texts are printed in modern form, with accents and punctuation, the lectional signs occurring in the papyri being noted in the apparatus criticus, where also faults of orthography, etc., are corrected. Iota adscript is printed where written, otherwise iota subscript is used. Square brackets [] indicate a lacuna, round brackets () the resolution of a symbol or abbreviation, angular brackets $\langle \rangle$ a mistaken omission in the original, braces { } superfluous letters or signs, double square brackets [[]] a deletion, the signs ' ' an insertion above the line. Dots within brackets represent the estimated number of letters lost or deleted, dots outside brackets mutilated or otherwise illegible letters. Dots under letters indicate that the reading is doubtful. Letters not read or marked as doubtful in the literal transcript may be read or appear without the dot marking doubt in the reconstruction, if the context justifies this.

Heavy Arabic numerals refer to Oxyrhynchus papyri printed in this and preceding volumes, ordinary numerals to lines, small Roman numerals to columns.

The abbreviations used are in the main identical with those in E. G. Turner, Greek Papyri: an Introduction (1968). It is hoped that any new ones will be self-explanatory.

TEXTS OF THE NEW TESTAMENT

2683. New Testament : Matthew xxiii 30-4, 35-9 4.6×7 cm.

Later second century

This fragment comes from a papyrus codex. Only one of the margins is preserved (the left in a, the verso, and the right in b, the recto). The writing, delicately executed with a fine pen, belongs to the same style as 1082; $\epsilon \theta \rho$ and c are generally tall, narrow and angular; hypsilon appears four times as a shaft topped with a sweeping shallow curve (as in P. Ant. 26, an extreme example of the manner). Hands of this type are normally assigned to the later second century A.D.: see 2663, introduction. 2683 therefore belongs among the oldest New Testament texts.

Punctuation is by middle stop and paragraphos. The scribe writes trema in expected places, and once a rough breathing. A blank line-end marks the new paragraph, b 6, as e.g. in P. Bodmer ii.

In the text as restored below, the lines of a have 22–7 letters, the lines of b 25-9. Between a and b about 200 letters are lost, assuming a normal textperhaps seven or eight lines. The column, therefore, will not have had much more than twenty lines, and quite possibly less : column width, c. 7 cm.; column height, c. II cm. maximum.

The scribe corrects his own error at b IO. There are uncorrected itacisms at b 4 and 10.

This part of Matthew has not so far been represented on papyrus (Aland, NTS 9 (1963), p. 314). 2683 offers only minor novelties: $b 7 a \pi o \kappa \tau_{\mu\nu\nu}$ in place of a moktew- or a moktew-, the oldest example of this common variant; b to $\eta \theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \kappa a$ for $\eta \theta \epsilon \lambda \eta \epsilon a$, a simple mistake. For the rest, the papyrus supports no reading which had occurred in only one MS., and no reading known only from the minuscules. It disagrees on four or five points with each of the fourthand fifth-century codices (it comes closest to the Sinaiticus). It sides with von Soden's Koine group on a matter of word order at a 2-3, but not at b 11-12.

A new division of the text begins at b 7, with Matth. xxiii 37. The division does not coincide with the beginning of a $\kappa\epsilon\phi\dot{a}\lambda\alpha\iota\sigma\nu$ in A, etc., or of a section in B, or with a break in W (Freer Gospels). But it does coincide with I an Eusebian section $(c\mu a/\epsilon)$, and with a paragraph in D (Bezae). For the relationship with Bezae cf. P. Bodm. ii, pp. 18–21; xiv, pp. 14–16

The text is printed below as it stands in the original, with the addition of supplements and word divisions. The collation is based on Legg's edition. I am grateful to Dr. J. Smit Sibinga (Leiden), who checked and substantially improved my first transcript.

This is P 77 in Aland's list.

2 ημεθα: or ημεν, the spacing cannot decide.

amocretlue: so D and a few minuscules, Vulgate (4 MSS.), Georgian, Irenaeus int., Lucifer, Origen once; ϵ_{YW} amocretlue rell. It is not impossible that ϵ_{YW} stood in 2683 too; but the resulting line is abnormally long.

η: om. 🛚 659.

7-8 anorrew/vouca: not an itacistic form of anorrew-, for the rules of syllabledivision require the double v (cf. a g-ro). The MSS. have anorrewouca (B D W, etc.), anorrewouca (Δ (\mathbf{w}) and many minuscules), anorrewouca (C G K and some minuscules), anorrewouca ($\Sigma \Phi$ 174 348 1424, item Syriac (s)). MSS. often differ over this verb : see Blass-

10.6 × 2.9 cm.

Third/fourth century

One double® leaf from a papyrus codex. The format is extraordinary : each page forms an oblong c.5.3 cm. wide but only 2.9 cm. high. I have found no parallel among the other miniature codices, familiar as these are for Christian texts (C. H. Roberts, The Codex, pp. 198–9).

The fold shows clearly. On it are two small holes, c. 7 and 9 mm. from the upper edge; these holes might have carried thread for binding. (The corresponding area at the foot of the fold is broken away.) The verso of the papyrus forms the inner surface of the double leaf.

The two leaves together contain c. 175 letters. They are not consecutive : the text missing between fol. r and fol. 2 (c. 330 letters without punctuation) would occupy two more double leaves. Before fol. r the Epistle extends to c. 375 letters, four or five single leaves. (These calculations are naturally very approximate, given the irregularity of the writing and format.) 2684 is not symmetrically placed within the Epistle : that is, it was not part of a single quire containing the whole of Jude and nothing else. The original codex may have been a single quire including more than one work, or a book of several quires; or the Epistle may have been copied only in part.

The hand is a leisurely half-cursive, which I should assign to the third or earlier fourth century A.D. Lectional signs : only trema and middle stop.

Fol. I has three lines to the page, fol. 2 four (with an extra syllable squeezed in at the foot on $2 \uparrow$). The spelling shows normal lapses of itacism : ϵ_i for i fol. 2. 4 and 7; ϵ for α_i fol. I. 6. False nu-moveable fol. 2. 7 and 9. Much more remarkable is the confusion of δ and ζ at fol. 2. 4 : this was never a common error, and occurs for the most part in subliterate private letters like 1069.

All in all 2684 stands some way from normal book-texts: the format is eccentric, the spelling vulgar, the script and lay-out amateurish. Most probably we have to do with an amulet. Miniature Gospels were certainly carried as amulets (Amundsen, Symb. Osl. 24 (1945), p. 140); Jude seems an odder choice, though brevity might commend it. Compare perhaps P. Ant. 54 (pater noster), another unprofessional booklet; and the other miniatures listed by Amundsen, l.c. pp. 126–7.

It is not surprising, then, that 2684 offers an eccentric text : two unique and three rare readings in four verses, and all of them in disagreement with the earliest witness, P. Bodmer xvii. See fol. 1. 2-3; fol. 1. 6; fol. 2. 2; fol. 2. 3; fol. 2. 9. Neither unique reading seems acceptable, and no problems are solved. But 2684 does throw some light on the early tradition of the text : fol. 2. 9 $\delta\delta\xi_{a\nu}$ (known hitherto only from a few minuscules) corresponds to maiestatem of the Vulgate and Clement; fol. 2. 2 $\epsilon \pi \epsilon_{\chi O \nu C \alpha i}$ (with five minuscules), where the other oldest witnesses disagree; fol. 1. 2-3 $\delta \epsilon c \pi \delta \tau \eta \nu \kappa (\delta \rho \iota o) \nu$ with one minuscule (and perhaps Cyril of Alexandria). It remains for experts to decide whether agreements between 2684 and a few minuscules are stemmatically significant or merely coincidental.

Collation based on the apparatus of von Soden (adding P. Bodmer xvii); but MSS. are referred to by their Gregory numbers. I am grateful to Professor G. D. Kilpatrick and Dr. J. Smit Sibinga for their help.

4 The subject of $i\delta i varo$ is Megabyzus, who was conducting the Persian operations in Egypt, and is the main subject of the narrative in the passage just before the papyrus begins. If the reading of the manuscripts is preferred, the subject is the Persians, but they have not been mentioned as body in the narrative, or as the plural subject of a sentence.

7 Thucydides prefers to omit the article before the ethnic in such phrases, when the ethnic comes between article and noun.

10 λημφθείc and other such forms from λaμβάνω and compounds are normal in Hellenistic and Imperial times on papyrus and stone.

11 The space will only accommodate ' $A\theta\eta\nu\omega\nu$. The reading was conjectured by Bekker and was later seen to have support in Schol. Townl. II. II 280 (ii, p. 179. 30 ed. Maass).

13 $\pi\lambda d[[oucat]$: the letters at the end of the line are crowded and there are twentyfour in the whole line. 13 cms. to the right of the line is a trace of the extreme left-hand letter of the last line of the next column. It looks like δ but might possibly be a. If the format of the roll resembled 1376, the number of lines to the column would have been about fifty-three.

1.2 cms. below the η of $\tau_{PUNPEUC}$ is an ink mark on the papyrus. Whether it is significant is hard to judge, as it is close to a hole, and the surface of the papyrus is badly rubbed. What remains looks like a dicolon but could be part of almost anything.

2704. EDICT OF A PREFECT 23×13 cm.

A.D. 292

The main interest of this edict, which prescribes measures against those who allow farm animals to stray and do damage to crops, is the date which it provides for Titius Honoratus, whose title of prefect is also confirmed (v. Vandersleyen, Chronologie des préfets, pp. 108 ff.). Its provisions are neatly illustrated by two recently published petitions from the papers of Aurelius Isidorus of Karanis (P. Cair. Isid. 78 and P. Mert. 92, both of A.D. 324), which make it clear that this was one of many pronouncements from high officials on the same subject. P. Petrie iii 26. 6 ff. (of 246-242 B.C., lately treated in Pap. Lugd. Batav. xiv, pp. 214 ff.) shows that it was a perennial problem.

The text is written on a verso in a practised cursive without pretensions to elegance and is complete on all sides though badly rubbed. The recto preserves the top of the sheet and ends of 19 lines of a document which recited a petition to a prefect, but it is too much damaged for publication.

I am much indebted to Professor Youtie for improving the text in several places.

⁶ Titius Honoratus, the most distinguished prefect of Egypt, says: There would be no profit whatever from our agriculture and the pains taken with it, unless those who regularly spoil crops were to guard against doing this. I learn, in fact, that although the harvest time has produced crops in great abundance, these same herdsmen spoil them. Therefore I enjoin you to guard against allowing beasts in among the crops, (adding) that a lawsuit before my court lies against anyone who disobeys in these matters, so that he shall be deprived of the actual beasts and shall himself experience strong measures. 'Extract . . ., . . . th year of (the deified ?) Alexander. Phamenoth.

'Claudius Herennianus to the strategi of the Seven Nomes and the Arsinoite, greeting. The message sent to me by Calpurnius Petronianus, the most worthy archidicastes in office, I have ordered to be set out below, together with the attached records of proceedings which were made in his presence. Do you see to it, in accordance with that information, that the contracts are lawfully completed—for in this way the provisions of the contracts (?) will be valid (?)—and that what is owed in virtue of them is delivered to the most glorious city of the Alexandrians, the established penalties remaining in force against those who have transgressed in the past, and, still more important, with the reservation of the like legal process in the future against those who disobey even after this warning. Take care that copies of this letter of mine, exactly as it stands, are published in plain letters in the metropolis and in the well-known places in the nome so that no one may be unaware of my pronouncements. And this I write as one who is managing the affairs of the prefecture in virtue of an imperial command. . . theyear. Mecheir r 5th (?).'

I τητεω. These legible letters suggest the restoration ἕκλημψι[c] ἐκ τῶρ ἐγκτήτεων, cf. PSI 450. 48 (verso col. i) ἕγλ(ημψιε) ἐκ τῆς τῶν ἐγκτήτεων. This document, however, is not quite the sort of thing that one would naturally expect to find in the property registers. Still, it could have had a bearing on title deeds, and so have been filed there.

(črovc). M. Aurelius Epagathus was still officiating in May/June, A.D. 224 (2565 2 seqq.). Since the letter is dated in February (13), the year must be A.D. 225 (4 Alex. = 224/5) or later. The next prefect is attested in A.D. 229/30 (v. Stein, Die Präfekten, p. 130).

' $A\lambda\epsilon_{fdv\delta\rho\sigma\nu}$. The traces are extremely scanty but the space suggests θ_{sof} rather than $C_{sovympov}$. If so, the extract was made after the death of Alexander, i.e. after the earlier part of A.D. 235.

 $\Phi_{\alpha\mu\nu\nu\omega\theta}$. Feb./March. No day follows; perhaps the record from which the extract was taken was arranged by months.

3 [Kalmodp]vice Therpownar[6c. Cf. 14. Though this name was not known to the latest list of archidiastae (Aegyptus 32 (1952), pp. 410 seqq.), it is confirmed from 2706. 14 Kalmoupue. It was not lack of room that made the writer break off. There is a depth of c. 21 cm. below this point.

2706. II 5×10.5 cm. Third century. This scrap has been used to scribble on. The main item (col. ii) is an address to Kaλπουρνίω Πετρωνιανῶ | ² ἰερεῦ ἀρχιδικαετῆ καὶ πρὸς | ³ τῆ ἐπιμελεία τῶν χρημα|⁴τιστῶν καὶ τῶν ἀλλων | ⁵ κριτηρίων. No more of that document was written but below there are scattered letters and symbols; there are the ends of 6 lines much damaged at the left and a few very scanty traces near the right edge. The verso is blank except at the left edge near the top, where there are a few traces of ink that look more like blots than writing. The name of the archidicastes has proved useful for 2705, which dates him approximately, c. A.D. 225.

2707. CIRCUS PROGRAMME

2707. CIRCUS PROGRAMME 16 × 30 cm.

Apparently the first of its kind to be published, this document is a programme of chariot racing and other displays, which were presumably presented in the public circus $(144 \ 2)$ at Oxyrhynchus.

The writing is in the 'chancery' style, with tiny alphas and hypsilons placed close to the top level of the other letters. A single word subscription, $\delta_{ieur} v'_{\chi ei}$, is in cursive. I should assign it to the sixth century, comparing P. Cair. Masp. iii, Plates I and II, but the hand is so stylized that the dating may not be certain even to that extent and there is too little of the cursive for me to judge.

The exact purpose of the document is not clear. But for the subscription it might be a public notice and one might hazard the guess that it is a copy of such a notice which had to be seen and approved by a second person; perhaps it passed between two municipal officials.

2 $P_{ik}^{*}[\alpha]_{k}$. These letters are very badly damaged but the feet of ν and κ are so characteristic that there can be little doubt of the word. The meaning is very uncertain. It may refer to the custom of setting up on the day of the games statues of Victory dedicated to the reigning emperors (v. RE, zte Reihe, VIII A 2, z529); compare the story in SHA. Sept. Sev. 22. 3, where two of the statues (Victoriolae) fall over and presage the deaths of Severus and Geta. Alternatively it may have to do with the victories of the previous day's racing.

4 $\pi_{0\mu}\pi_{\eta}$. The procession is elsewhere supposed to precede the events (RE Suppl. VII 1627, 1629).

5 $\beta_{0r}[\dot{a}\lambda_{0ot}]$. From Latin vocales, v. Soph. Lex. s.v. In Daremberg-Saglio, s.v. funambulus, there are pictures of rope-walkers playing musical instruments, which is the closest parallel I have come across.

13 Everóc. A. H. M. Jones, Later Roman Empire, iii, p. 1018, knows of no mention of athletic events after the fourth century, though pointing out that Justinian's republication of Diocletian's constitution on athletic victors implies that they continued.

2708. PETITION TO AN EPISTRATEGUS

12 × 10 cm.

m. 14th April, A.D. 169?

The epistrategus petitioned here is Subatianus Aquila, who served as prefect of Egypt in the early third century and is well known from the papyri. According to Stein's conclusions from Eusebius (Die Präfekten, p. III), he became prefect in A.D. 202/3 (II Severus and Caracalla) as the successor of Q. Maecius Laetus.¹ An endorsement on this papyrus mentions the ninth year. Since direct promotion from a sexagenarian post like the epistrategia to one of the great prefectures is inconceivable, this can hardly be 9 Severus and Caracalla, A.D. 200/I. The ninth year next before this is thirty-two years earlier, namely 9 Marcus and Verus, A.D. 168/9, which is a plausible date for this document, since in the only other known case where an epistrategus reached the prefecture of Egypt—that of Tiberius Julius Alexander—the process took twenty-four years. The ninth year before that is 9 Antoninus Pius, A.D. 145/6, and this is almost certainly too far back, since it would make Aquila over eighty in A.D. 210.

¹ It is now known that a prefect called Claudius Julianus was in office between Laetus and Aquila (BGU xi 2024).

2708. PETITION TO AN EPISTRATEGUS

I am grateful to Professor Syme, who also discussed the question with Professor Birley, for assuring me that this sort of career need occasion no surprise. Youthful equestrians could be epistrategi and a prefect could well be elderly.

This petition once formed part of a $\tau \delta \mu oc cv \kappa o \lambda \hbar \eta c \mu u oc$, but the remains of the adjoining documents are too scanty to show how they were related to this one.

Though a great many Oxyrhynchite village names are known, the first presumption must be that this too is Oxyrhynchite and consequently that Subatianus Aquila was epistrategus of the Heptanomia. I have suggested in the introduction that the document dates from A.D. 168/9 (i.e. 20th Aug. 168-28th Aug. 169). There is a vacant space in the series of epistrategi of the Heptanomia at this point, though Aquilius Capitolinus was in office between Nov. 169 and Nov. 170, v. 2563 n. For 9 Antoninus Pius (A.D. 145/6) the epistr. Hept. was Minicius Corellianus, who served from A.D. 144 to 147.

A petition from a widow to the strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome. Seconded by her father, who acts as her $\kappa i \rho_{\mu \rho a \mu \mu a \tau e \nu c}$ of Oxyrhynchus to appoint a guardian for her two children. Her husband has died recently without making a will. At the bottom of the document, the widow's father has written in his own hand to the effect that he is her $\kappa i \rho_{\mu o c}$ and has signed the petition on her behalf as his daughter was illiterate (cf., e.g., 251, BGU 1070, P. Amh. 71).

The document can be dated between A.D. 202 and 207, and traces of the numeral representing the exact date make it likeliest perhaps that it belongs to the year 204 : it comes from the reign of Severus, Caracalla and Geta, and is addressed to a hitherto unknown strategus, Androsthenes $\delta \kappa a \, Po \partial \phi o \, (?)$. There are only those six years available, representing perhaps two crparnylai (see P. Mertens, Chron. d'Ég. 61 (1956), pp. 341 f., Pap. Lugd. Bat. xiv 15 f. and cf. Chron. d'Ég. 80 (1965), p. 357). The names, but not the titles, of Geta were obliterated under Caracalla. (On the Damnatio Memoriae of Geta in the papyri see P. Mertens in Hommages à Léon Herrmann, Coll. Latomus 44 (1960), pp. 541-55.)

For the strategus as the delegating, and sometimes the appointing authority in cases of guardianship, see Taubenschlag, *Law*², pp. 161 f. and cf. Grenfell and Hunt on 888, P. Tebt. ii 397, l. 4, J. E. Powell on P. Harr. 68.

The first hand is a practised and upright half-cursive with relatively few ligatures. The second hand is cursive, sloping to the right, with the lines curving up on the right. Written with the fibres. Verso blank. Folded once down the middle and ten times down the width. The papyrus has a distinctly yellowish appearance.

I am indebted to Professor P. Mertens of Liège University for useful information about the frequency in third-century Oxyrhynchus of the names which occur here. In fact, none of the people mentioned seems to be identifiable.

2710. PETITION FOR A GUARDIAN

17th May, A.D. 261 20 × 7 cm.

This petition is best paralleled by 1466, but adds nothing to the subject, which is treated by Taubenschlag, Law², pp. 32, 174.

It is of interest chiefly for the form of the date; May 17th in the first Greco-Egyptian year of the emperors Macrianus and Quietus is placed in the hitherto unknown consulship of Macrianus, for the second time, and Quietus, possibly also for the second time. It seems likely that they were consuls first at the end of the preceding Julian year (A.D. 260), when they began their reign. Their names do not occur in Degrassi's Fasti.

This date is the latest yet known for the prefect Aemilianus and goes some way to support Stein's hypothesis that he did not try to usurp the throne till after the fall of Macrianus and Quietus (Die Präfekten, p. 145, Archiv iv, pp. 410 seq.):

The writing is across the fibres but there are no traces on the reverse side.

I For the most part the traces are feet only and it is uncertain how much is Latin and how much Greek. In may be Latin ITI. I have not succeeded in reconciling it with anything suggested by the parallel in 1466, except for the end of the line. Is may be part of $\kappa \delta \lambda(\lambda \eta \mu a)$, which is needed, or it may be part of the date, $\Pi a \chi \omega \nu r \beta'$, followed by $\kappa o \lambda()$ in the gap. The spacing is uncertain.

7 This seems to be the first clear reference to an apprepric of Oxyrhynchus, though it is probable that many of the people described as ἀρχιερατεύςας, βουλευτής 'Oξ. πόλεως (e.g. 1662 18, 1697 1) held the office. See Otto, Priester u. Tempel i, p. 45, n. 34 (with ii, p. 313), ii, p. 202, for local high priesthoods.

9 $\tau \delta \beta$?]'. Cf. Introduction. The bottom edge is not preserved and it is therefore uncertain whether this was the last line or not, cf. 1466 10, but it can be seen that the blank space below line 9 is slightly deeper than the usual interlinear space.

2711. PETITION TO A PREFECT

16×8 cm.

C. A.D. 268-71

The exact object of this petition is not known because of the loss of everything after line IO, but it was a matter relating to the guardianship of the three children of the petitioner's nephew.

The name of the prefect is of interest, because his nomen occurs here for the first time in the papyri and confirms Stein's identification of the prefect Ammianus with the Statilius Ammianus whose earlier career is partly known from inscriptions (v. Die Präfekten, p. 150).

Unfortunately a firm date for his term of office is still lacking, though this document belongs after the death of Gallienus (A.D. 268) and is therefore later than the earliest date available for him.¹

2712. PETITION TO A DEPUTY-STRATEGUS

15 × 20 cm.

A.D. 202/3

The name of a prefect of Egypt, one Rupilius Felix, occurs here for the first time. It seems probable that he was the direct successor of Titius Honoratus, who was active in February of the previous Egyptian year, cf. 2704.

In spite of the damage at the left the legal steps are clear in outline. The petitioner's tenant-farmer petitioned the prefect against her, the prefect delegated the case to the strategus and she by this document asked the strategus's department to communicate this decision to the farmer.

The allegation seems to be that the farmer wished to surrender his lease while he still owed several amounts of rent and taxes both in money and kind. His grounds for petitioning the prefect are not clear, though they may be stated in the damaged lines 10-11.

2713. PETITION TO A PREFECT 19×26 cm.

c. A.D. 297

A point of interest that this ordinary petition provides is the address to Aristius Optatus, the prefect whose name has become famous from his edict about the tax reforms of Diocletian (P. Cair. Isid. r).

The petitioner claimed that her mother's two brothers were detaining the third share of her maternal grandfather's estate, which should have descended to her through her mother, and had illegally taken the profits from it during her minority.

'To Aristius Optatus, the most distinguished prefect of Egypt, from Aurelia Didyme, daughter of Didymus, from the glorious and most glorious city of the Oxyrhynchites. To be wronged by strangers is hard, but to be wronged even by kinsmen is very hard. There were born to my grandfather on my mother's side, Dioscorus, three children, Theon and Dioscorus and Plutarche, my mother, who were his heirs when he departed this life. But after an interval my mother rendered up her life while I was under age and already an orphan. And you know very well, lord prefect, that the female tribe is by nature easily despised because of the weakness of our nature. For all that was left to us (?) by the foregoing inheritance-being one household and one family-was in that very house in which they lived in partnership, I mean because the slaves and lands and household and moveable goods were all held in common. But in the meanwhile my mother's brothers by the same mother, conspiring with one another in vain and empty madness with intent to defraud me, laid hands on the rest as they wished, each of them whatever he wanted of the slaves and everything else, taking no account of me but, so to speak, even thrusting me out of the inheritance that belongs to me of the third share. Now, however, recovering myself with the help of your watchful genius and beginning to recognize that I myself can have no (further ?) recourse to anyone but you, benefactor and guardian of me and of all, I made haste to beg you, as you see me being robbed, to give orders, whenever it pleases you, that my uncles on my mother's side should be forced to restore to me the shares that fall to me, coming to me by succession to my mother, along with the emoluments from that time till now of slaves and rents and all the rest, and when I receive back my mother's possessions as a result of your good faith and nobility I shall forever declare my gratitude to your genius. Farewell.'

(2nd hand) ' I, Aurelia Didyme, sent (the petition) for submission. I, Aurelius Thonis, wrote on her behalf because she does not know letters.

4 Evy'yevour, cf. 11 Euryevelac. Substitution of & for c in con and compounds is relatively rare in the papyri. Mayser (I, p. 210) says that it does not occur in Ptolemaic documents. Cf. Croenert, Mem. Gr. Herc. p. 95 n. 1, with its reference to BGU 636. 33.

10 éavroie. Probably equals nuiv avroie, v. Mayser2 I ii, pp. 63 seq.

12/13 The supplement is not very well founded. But the people concerned seem to be the petitioner's uncles, possibly with the addition of her mother Plutarche, though her death has already been referred to (7 f.). To restore a feminine (e.g. olkoūcau, mâcau) would assume an error of fact.

19/20 ovderi ... η . There seems hardly room for $d\lambda\lambda\varphi$ at the end of the line, but it must be understood, if not supplied. Cf. Luc. Dem. enc. 30 ad fin. rl rd mhéov, el jûr adlkero; πάντως ούδεν αν αύτον η απέκτεινας.

Verso. This endorsement is hard to understand. 'Poll-tax' is not obviously appropriate. 'Summary' is perhaps more likely, though in that case it seems to have been unfinished. , is possible after s, but the next one or two letters do not look compatible with any case of encrepation or -acov, though it can hardly be anything else.

2714. Nomination of Village Liturgists

11 × 33 cm. 20th Aug. A.D. 256

This is a straightforward document of the type officially called $\pi\rho oc \dot{a}\gamma\gamma\epsilon\lambda\mu a$ (e.g. P. Flor, 2 i 3), submitting to the strategus the names of the liturgists designated by the villagers for the year just beginning. The names of the strategus and his deputy do not appear in the lists by Henne and Mussies (in Pap. Lugd. Bat. xiv).

The verso, which is much rubbed, has been used for a list of names in alphabetical order.

'To Aurelius Sabinus, strategus of the Oxyrhynchite nome, through Aurelius Petronius his deputy, from Aurelius Pagonis, son of P . . ., and Aurelius Patauris, son of Saras, both comarchs of the hamlet of Paneui for the past third year, the list of liturgists of the present fourth year compiled by us with the consent of the people of the hamlet.

' It is as follows :

'Comarchs: Telemachus, son of Saras, whose mother is Helene; Patas, son of Heracleus, whose mother is Takathis.

Overseer of the peace : Patarches, son of Pekysis, whose mother is Plutarche.

'Field guard : Castor, son of Telemachus, whose mother is Tauris.

'Watchmen for village and crops : Plution, son of Diogas, whose mother is Heraclous ; Pekysis, son of Ammonius, whose mother is Tamounis ; Cephalon, son of Papontos, whose mother is Taharphocras : Pettiris, son of Metais, whose mother is Collauchis.

'Guard of the threshing-floor: Saion, son of Horus, whose mother is Plutarche; all from the same hamlet with sufficient means and fit for the services.

2715. NOMINATION TO A LITURGY

'In the fourth year of the emperors Caesars Publius Licinius Valerianus and Publius Licinius Valerianus Gallienus, Pii, Felices, Augusti. Thoth rst. (and hand) We, Aurelius Pagonis and Aurelius Patauris have submitted (this list). I, Aurelius . . . on, son of Plution, from the city of the Oxyrhynchi, wrote on their behalf since they do not know letters.'

21 rel⁻. Perhaps rel(euwle'), or the like, indicating that the appointments were confirmed and published (v., e.g., P. Flor. 2 i 1 ff.) by the strategus. It appears to be in the same hand as the body of the document.

2715. NOMINATION TO A LITURGY

30th Aug. A.D. 386

There are two copies of this submission, one much better spelt than the other and complete except for some damage to the middles of the first four lines. The second contains only lines I-I6. The text printed is that of the first, and the orthographic variants have not been recorded, but the second papyrus has been useful for the restoration of the names of the consuls and the logistes.

M. Mertens in his book Les Services de l'état civil quotes some documents that tend to show that the systates held office for a year (Table, p. 44) and deduced from certain texts showing the same systates in action over a long period that ex-holders could be re-appointed in every third year. The present systates is now known to have been active in 363/4 (1116), 381/2 (PSI 1108) and 386/7 (2715), and the interval between the last two dates is incompatible with a theory of regular re-appointment, though not with a minimum period of two clear years between appointments.

I present and announce at my own personal risk for naval service on the public flat boats for one year from the 1st Thoth until the fifth of the intercalary days of Mesore, inclusive of the fifth, of the present year 63 (and) 32, of the present fifteenth indiction, the after-mentioned person who is fit for the office.

'He is :--Aurelius Antiochus, son of Dorotheus, from the same city, of the same tribe.' (and hand) 'I, Aurelius Mouses, systates, submitted (this nomination).'

2 The second copy has Φλαουί[ου | Εδ]οδίου.

3 The second copy has $\Phi Aaoulov$ 'Hextov (sic). The name of the logistes is new, i.e. not in the list given by B. R. Rees in JJP 7-8 (1953-4), pp. 104-5.

This receipt for $\epsilon \pi i \kappa \epsilon \phi a \lambda a \iota or (\pi \epsilon \delta \lambda \epsilon \omega c)$ is noteworthy because it names and dates a catholicus, Memmius Rufus, who has probably appeared also in 1410 r, where the nomen was read as $M_{a\gamma}[\nu l]_{\rho}[\nu]$.

(and hand) 'The same Ammon paid, for (city poll-tax of ?) the 13th, 12th and 5th year, another eight hundred drachmae.

' I. Chosion, systates, (signed).'

I έπικεφ[a]λ[alov ?πόλεως. πόλεως appears in PSI 163, 462, 2579 and 2716, but not in PSI 302, 780 or 2578. It is doubtful whether any distinction is intended. The signature of the systates, a municipal official, certainly shows that a city tax is referred to here.

2 II, IO, 3 = A.D. 294-5.

9 Memmius Rufus. It seems probable that this is the same catholicus as the Max[ví]o[v | Povov of 1410 1. That document is now in Cairo.

2717 supplies him with a more reliable date than the one obtainable from 1410, v. I. Lallemand, L'Administration, p. 257.

10 "Aµµwv. It is not necessary to supply a name in the preceding line and regard this as a patronymic. Single names suffice in several of the parallels, and confirmation is supplied here from line 14. The disregard of grammar is also paralleled in other receipts.

11 All that is dotted here after duaxoclac is illegible and should be regarded as restored from the parallels.

14 At the end of this line something like inik (spalalov) may be missing, but it is also possible that the text runs straight on to the next line, as in PSI 780. 7.

15 13, 12, [5] = A.D. 296-7. It is a little surprising that the payments are not for successive years, but cf., for example, P. Cair. Isid. 34.

17 f. The dotted letters (17) look like $\delta_{t\dot{q}}$, possibly struck through. In the next line everárye is better than everárov. There is blank papyrus after it so that ecery(uelwyau) was either omitted or separated from it by more than I cm. Sid Xuclaw [oc | cvcrárou is a possibility, but I prefer [[διά]] Χωείων | ευστάτης [cecη().

2718. RECEIPT

22 × 31 cm.

5th June, A.D. 458

Four ironsmiths acknowledge to a senator the receipt of money for expenditure on nails and other materials for a public bath. Because of the scarcity of fifth-century papyri, it can be regarded as having some interest, and the building of new public baths shows that things did not come completely to a standstill during this period.

I owe some improvements of the text to a pupil with whom I re-read it, Mr. W. J. Tait.

17. l. evráviov.

'After the consulship of Flavius Constantinus and Flavius Rufus the most illustrious. Payni 11th.

To . . . Leucadius the venerable senator of the illustrious and most illustrious city of the Oxyrhynchites, Aurelius Abraham, son of Martyrius, Aurelius Serenus, son of Phoebammon, Aurelius Apphous, son of Didymus, Aurelius John, son of Cornelius, and Aurelius Samuel, son of Phoebammon, all ironsmiths from the same city. Our other earlier receipt remaining valid and warranted, in accordance with the integrity of it we declare with mutual guarantee that on the present occasion too we have received and accepted from your Excellency, for the price of nails and other equipment supplied for the public bath which is now, with God s help, being built, two solidi of gold ; and for the assurance of the receipt of the said two solidi we also drew up this receipt, which is valid, and in answer to the formal question we gave our assent.

(and hand) 'We, Aurelius Abraham, son of Martyrius, Aurelius Serenus, son of Phoebammon, Aurelius Apphous, son of Didymus, Aurelius John, son of Cornelius, and Aurelius Samuel, son of Phoebammon, the foregoing, made the receipt after receiving on the present occasion too (the allowances for ?) work on the public bath, and all the contents as aforesaid satisfy us. I. Aurelius Herminus, son of Alypius, wrote on their behalf in their presence, because they do not know letters.

3 πολιτευομένω. Senator, v. Lallemand, L'Administration, pp. 126 seqq.

9 mleres. According to W. Schmitz, n mlere in den Papyri (Diss. Köln, 1964), p. 111, this expression is part of the bombastic Byzantine style and has no precise legal force. 11 επιχρείας. W. J. T.

12 λοθτρον. For Oxyrhynchite baths v. Rend. Ist. Lomb. lii (1919), pp. 300 seq.

18 Space is too short for $[10 voucuárua, though an abbreviation would be possible, if the grammar can be carried on. The trace after the gap suits α or ω best.

20 η[αρόντων. W. J. T. Cf. 1899 26, 1957 22.

22 This is a notarial signature, illegible to me, in a tallish sloping and very densely cramped cursive.

Verso. The traces suit 'Aßpaa]u[i]ov, rather than 'Aßpaau, cf. Cauo[v]n/lov in the same line, probably preceded by irrayion (or xeipoypapor) Auphlian.

2719. Directions for Delivering Letters

11 × 16 cm.

Third century

There are some papyrus letters which have short instructions to the bearer actually written on them and entitled cypacia (1678 28, 1773 40, and presumably P. Meyer 30, 56—correcting $cn\mu[\epsilon i o]\nu$ to $cn\mu[aci]a$), but I believe that this is the first time that the instructions have survived independently of a letter and in such detail.

Rufus, the man to whom the letters were to be sent, seems to have lived in Hermopolis (l. 2 n.), but the directions were discarded in Oxyrhynchus, perhaps by the letter-carrier after he had finished with them; or perhaps Rufus himself sent this note to his friends in Oxyrhynchus, who instructed their messenger by word of mouth.

The handwriting is a clear cursive of the third century, perhaps from near the end of it. The margins survive on three sides, but a few letters are missing at the beginning of each line except the first.

Go down the steps and up . . . and turn right and after the precinct of the (temple) on the right there is a seven-storey house and on top of the gatehouse (a statue of Fortune?) and opposite a basket-weaving shop. Inquire there or from the concierge and you will be informed. And shout yourself . . . will answer you . . .

2 Cedquarific. Probably in Hermopolis; cf. CPH 127 verso i 7, iii 6 (pp. 76 seqq.), where the form is the same. Alexandria had a gate called the Ceλήνης πύλαι, v. Calderini, Dizionario dei nomi, p. 147.

 $\pi \epsilon \rho \left[\pi d \right] \pi c \rho v$? Perhaps not the exact word, but for the sense of ' walk in a particular direction', as opposed to ' walk about', cf. BGU 380. 17 seqq. ypáyor µor και χαταβένω. περ(ι)πατώ μετά ου έάν εύρω, Acta Thomae, ed. Bonnet, p. 87. 3 περιπατηςάντων δε μίλιον έν παρέδωκεν αυτόν τές capci crpatiúraic κτλ.

6] oc. The broken letter is an upright with a crossbar, i.e. τ or π . a[.] τ oc or a[.] τ oc. Perhaps $d[\delta v]_{Toc}$, but ä $\delta v \tau ov$ is far more frequently met.

ele 7 d $\lambda_{\mu\beta\nu}c$. Presumably the equivalent of ele $\lambda_{\mu\beta}a$, 'to the West'; read $\Lambda_{\mu\beta\nu}$?

are to does in the unitably the equivalent of at αρα, to the west is read Λρφ if a constraint of the αρα, to the west is read Λρφ if a constraint of the target of the other side of some depression.
9 Jow. Supply lepled or something more specific, such as Iclov = Icledov.
Emdersede. According to Luckhard, Das Privalhaus in Agypten, p. 40, the highest house known from the papyri is four storeys high. Diodorus (i 45) mentions houses of four and five storeys in Diospolis. This mention of a seven-storey house therefore adds some thing to our ideas of the appearance of a metropolis in Roman Egypt. My impression from the context is that it was more like a Roman tenement than a grand town house. Professor Turner suggests that it was 'a mud-brick house reared up against a pylon or wall of a temple . . . such as one still sees on ancient sites in Egypt '.

10 $\chi\eta$. Perhaps $T_{\eta\chi\eta}$, i.e. a statue of the goddess Fortune.

II $\kappa v[\rho]_{\tau 0} \pi \lambda o \kappa i o v = -\epsilon i o v$. This is a new word, cf. 520 20 $\kappa v \rho \tau \omega v \pi \lambda \epsilon \kappa \tau \omega(v)$. plaited (? fish) baskets ' (ed. pr.).

13 βάλε. In P. Mich. 220 (cf. Tabachovitz, Études, p. 56) φωνήν βάλλειν appears not to refer to an audible communication and is translated by 'send word'. The most obvious way of taking it here is of a shout for admission followed by a response from inside, inakoview being used in its special technical sense of 'answer the door'.

olouc :[. The missing letter is either ; or &. If it is ;, perhaps & Aoúc;:[oc | de] inakove con would do, and Lusius seems plausible in company with Rufus. olove & (, on the other hand, gives me no ideas.

characterless trace, et. ele rà màoia?

15] ágovras. The trace is the end of a horizontal at mid-letter level, e.g. γ , ϵ , θ , λ , π , c, τ, υ, χ, ψ.

2720. SALE OF HOUSE

22×18.4 cm.

A.D. 41/54

This sheet contains two related documents, written by the same hand : 10-24 a deed of sale, 1-9 a bank-receipt for the sales-tax. Compare 99 (where the receipt comes second) and 577 (the sale only). The form is a Ptolemaic survival; so too are the additional charges mentioned in 8-9.

2] λεμων: presumably Π]ολέμων (though Τ]ελέμων is not palaeographically excluded). This bank is not registered by Calderini, Aeg. 18 (1938), pp. 260 ff.

3 ro[0: ro[0 @owno]; could be read here, and ro]0 @[o]wr[10c in 13.

5 καί α [: perhaps καί άλλ[ους, cf. P. Mich. v 269. 2-3 κ. καί ά. πρός αὐτὸν τὸν πριάμενον...καί ἐτέρους. Neither απο[nor τον] can be read.

6 af[a] [] [] e_{μ} [] : [λe_{μ} []: [λe_{μ} [] is a possible reading of the second part. The beginning was presumably Af[a] [] ν_{μ} a proper name in the genitive (afa[18): notice Axapes, basilicogrammateus of the Oxyrhynchite nome in the mid-third century B.C. (P. Mich. Zeno 82, introd.).

7-9 The normal rate of sales-tax for the time and place was 10% (Wallace, Taxation, p. 448 n. 60): hence the price of the property will have been exactly 9 talents copper. The tax was paid in copper instead of in silver, and so became liable to a surcharge of 10% (540 dr. copper) and a transport charge of 2 dr. r_1^2 ob. ($r_1/2400$ of the original tax).

8 $e_{\pi i} \delta e_{\kappa}$: again in 99 19. Wallace has some very dubious further speculations, Taxation, p. 228. Flere the charge was clearly an agio. The phrase $\chi a \lambda \kappa o \vartheta \pi p \lambda c \vartheta h c \vartheta \pi p \lambda c \vartheta n \lambda c \vartheta h c \vartheta$

9 κ[ατ]αγωγίω: Préaux, L'Économie royale, p. 335: a charge for transporting the bulky copper coinage. It appears in obscure circumstances in two other early Roman documents: Wallace, Taxation, pp. 43 and 325; Schuman, Cd'É 38 (1963), p. 315.
 10-11 If the supplements in 16 and 18 are right, the lines of this section had ±75

10-11 If the supplements in 16 and 18 are right, the lines of this section had ± 75 letters, like those of the first section. But nothing seems to be missing between advoxpdropoc and wyde.

II $\bar{\eta}$ cebacr $\hat{\eta}\iota$: add Mesore 8 to Snyder's list, Aeg. 44 (1964), p. 161. The 8th was the anniversary of Claudius' birth.

14 αφρ ν: presumably ἀφρῦν was intended, but I cannot read it.

20-1 A detached fragment has letters from two lines; the second reads] βal_{β} and perhaps belongs to 20, giving $\tau a\lambda[diraw dired a] \beta \beta \beta al_{\alpha}(cet \delta d \sigma) = \eta \pi \rho a \kappa d c$ (cf. 99). After olk(ac in 21, the top of an upright with backhook: probably $\kappa a \sigma a \rho a \omega$. The end of 22 is apparently blank; 23 then begins a new clause—probably the names of the agoranomi who conducted the transaction.

2721. WORK CONTRACT FOR ENTERTAINERS 115

2721. WORK CONTRACT FOR ENTERTAINERS 6.5 × 23.5 cm.

10th Oct., A.D. 234

By this contract the representatives of the men of an Oxyrhynchite village hired flautists and a dancing girl to entertain them for the four days of a festival. This type of document is now well known and the previous examples are conveniently collected in M. Vandoni, Feste pubbliche e private, Nos. 14–28 (add P. Alex. 6, P. Strasb. 341 in Bull. de la Faculté des Lettres de Strasbourg, Nov. 1966, p. 232).

'There contract with one another Aurelius Ptollion, son of Barbarus, and Aurelius Heras, son of Heras, both presidents of the men of the village of Nesmeimis, who are celebrating a festival, and Antinous, son of Hermias, first flute and supervisor for this occasion, of three flute-players and one castanet dancer, Ptollion's party that they have taken on Antinous and the whole band to do service for the men who are having a feast for four days of festival from the eleventh of the ensuing month of Hathyr of the present year, at a daily rate of fifty drachmae, twelve pairs of loaves, two kotylai of radish-oil apart from what goes to the lamp, one segmented loaf (?), the usual service, and every day one keramion of wine all free from encumbrances. And from the hire money Antinous has received on the spot by way of earnest money twenty drachmae and they will transport him and the others, act of God apart, from the Oxyrhynchite nome with three donkeys and will transport them to the village and will provide for them also safe and undisturbed lodging and after the four days having satisfied them with all the hire money and the separate deliveries in kind all to the full amount they will necessarily transport them on the fifteenth to the same Oxyrhynchite nome with the equal number of three donkeys truly and faithfully. And Antinous consents to all the foregoing. The agreement, written in two copies, is valid. In the fourteenth year of the emperor Caesar Marcus Aurelius Severus Alexander, Pius, Felix, Augustus, Phaophi 13th.'

(and hand) ' I, Aurelius Antinous, consent to all the foregoing.'

3 простатан. Cf. San Nicolò, Ägyptisches Vereinswesen, ii, p. 59.

5 πρωταύλης. Cf. SIG 1257. This word should be recognized also in P. Lond. 331. I (vol. ii, pp. 354-5--extended πρω(roy) $\pi(\hat{y})$ aiλη(πρίδων), because there is a 'Verschleifung' at the end and the large τ in the middle suggests an abbreviation, v. Plates, vol. ii, no. 65); so probably in P. Gen. 73. I (Παμουβις ρ. τουλη. ed. pr., Παμοῦνις [] rouλης[] W. Chr. 496, $\pi[\rho]o(νοη)\tau(\eta c)$ aὐλητ(ρίδων) Vandoni, no. 19); and so possibly in P. Grenf. ii 67. I (πρωνοη()) $\gamma v\mu()$ ed. pr., πρωνοη() aυλ() Kenyon), but cf. Vandoni, no. 24. I προνοητή μουςικών.

This last document has been republished as P. Med. 47 with a plate (XVIII), which allows some corrections to be made, see Cd^2E 42 (1967), p. 225, and add for l. 14 [Kai] $\frac{1}{2\pi^2 p}$ errorbär.

6 Above the λ of $a[i]\lambda\eta\tau\omega\nu$ there appears to be some interlinear addition. It is obscured by the descender of the ρ of $\pi\rho\omega\tau\alpha\lambda\eta\sigma_c$ above and some of it seems to have been lost in the preceding gap. The surviving trace might be a ν , which rather suggests $[\tau\omega]\nu$, but I do not see why that should have been added.

7 mapeil/Appéra. This is the characteristic term in these contracts, cf. Vandoni, nos. 15. 4, 16. 4, 17. 4, 20. 4, 21. 9, 24. 5. Therefore in P. Alex. 6. 13 mapalaßiv governs awAprác (16), and that document is one of this type. [rww m]apadhycw in the earlier part of l. 13 does not seem to be justified by the photograph (Pl. III), though I am unable to read the remains satisfactorily.

10 θαλεμ[αζ]ομένοις: l. θαλιαζομένοις, not in WB. [aζ] is crowded, but I know of no alternative.

10 seqq. The details are reminiscent of the festival of Isis, which also lasted for four days of Hathyr, but the dates of the Isieia are given as Hathyr 17-20 (v. Merkelbach, Isisfeste, p. 35).

12 The usual \angle -shaped sign for ërouc is followed by a horizontal stroke above the letter level, but there seems not to be a trace of $\imath\delta$ or room for it.

17 $\lambda_{a\mu\pi\delta\delta a}$. Since there was a possibility that the entertainers would have to pay for oil supplied to this lamp, I suppose it is more likely to have been their own theatrical lighting than village property.

μερικού. The context of 1655 7 suggests some sort of bread—a 'segmented loaf', says ed. pr. ; according to Schmidt, GGA (1922), pp. 103 seq., it may represent ἐμερικού from Coptic ε.κ.ρ.κ., 'flour, wheat'.

24 χ_{wpic} θ_{eo0} β_{lac} . Cf. 144 II (of A.D. 580) $\delta_{l\chi a} \ \theta. \beta. ; v.$ Modica, Papirologia giuridica, p. 200, for legal references. It is evidently nothing to do with the legislation of Justinian, as Mitteis thought.

 $dmd \ ro\theta \ Occul \rhourxeerov.$ The same phrasing occurs in 1275 25, where the meaning is discussed in a note and it is doubtfully taken to be ' from the metropolis'. Nessmeimis here, like Souis there, is inside the Oxyrhynchite nome. It may mean that transport will be arranged from anywhere within the nome. Transport in both directions is regularly provided by these contracts, but good business must occasionally have required the entertainers to go straight from one engagement to the next without a return to their base. The base was presumably in Oxyrhynchus, since the papyrus was dug up there.

25 $\delta_{VGW} \tau_{PLGW}$. It seems to be implied that they rode the donkeys, but there were four of them at least, and five if Antinous was a leader with three subordinates rather than chief of three. The same problem arises in P. Lond. ii 331 (pp. 154-5), where four donkeys sufficed for eight entertainers. In that contract four of the entertainers were girl dancers. Could it be that in these cases the women had to walk? In other cases there seem to have been enough donkeys for all unless the amount of baggage was very great, v. Westermann. 'The Castanet Dancers of Arsinoe', JEA x (1922), p. 140.

2722. MORTGAGE CONTRACT

13×26 cm. 30th March, A.D. 154 This straightforward contract is a mortgage between the two persons called Thonis in the genealogical table below.

Thonis (A) acknowledges a loan of 600 drachmae from Thonis (B) on a threeyear term and for its return pledges shares in a house which he holds in common with his brother Hephaestas and his sister Tasempothe.

An interesting detail is the new title of $\pi v \rho a(\partial \eta c$ which both parties possess as priests of Athena Thoeris. The nearest parallel is $\pi v \rho a(\partial o c$, which Strabo applies to Persian fire-worshippers (733). Since the family names allude to the god of fire, as Ptah and Hephaestus, it seems quite likely that the title was hereditary. The connection of Thoeris with Ptah is rare, but there is a Ptolemaic inscription in which she is called 'beloved of Ptah', v. Roscher v 888.

'I declare that I have had from you through the bank of Hierax and his associated epiteretae at the Serapeum in the city of the Oxyrhynchi, under the supervision of Martialis, who has made an offer (for the bank), 600 drachmae of silver of imperial coinage, total 600 drachmae, as a capital sum to which nothing at all has been added, at interest of a drachma per mina per month from the current month of Pharmouthi, and I shall necessarily restore to you the interest each month and the principal on the 30th Phamenoth of the twentieth year of Antoninus Caesar, the lord, without any delay; and if I do not restore it as is written, I agree that there shall remain to you, Thonis, son of Hephaestas, and your descendants and successors in exchange for whatever I may fail to return after the term, power and control for all time over all the shares falling to me in common with my sibs Tasempothe and your father Hephaestas of a house in the western parts of the 'Tenth' quarter in a blind alley, and of its courtyard and offices and entrances and exits, of the whole of which the boundaries are on the south Sarapion's property, on the north the street. on the east Apis's property, on the west property of myself and my sibs, and (I agree) that you may pay by yourself, if you choose, the tax due on these things and own them as if a sale had been made to you and may receive the income and sell them to others and use them as you choose, no right of legal process remaining to me, but I shall necessarily deliver to you or your deputies the said shares of real property warranted for all time against all (claimants) by every sort of warranty and unaffected by any census return and free from liability to the cultivation of royal or domain land and from every sort of public claim and from everything else whatsoever, and until I make repayment it will not be possible for me to sell or mortgage the said shares of real property or any part of them, or otherwise dispose of them in any way or register anyone living in them or everything that I shall do to the contrary will be invalid, and it will be possible for you by yourself, from now on, whenever you choose, to establish possession through the land registry office until I return to you the capital and the interests, while there remains to you, Thonis, son of Hephaestas, the choice and decision whether you wish, if after the term I do not act lawfully in the matter of the principal and interests, to control in place of them the said shares of the house on the foregoing conditions, or to make exaction of this same capital and the (other) things mentioned and, for the time in excess of the term, of interest at the same rate of a drachma per mina per month, from me and from the shares of the house and from all of my possessions as if by legal decision. The deed shall be valid wherever it is produced.

'In the 17th year of the emperor Caesar Titus Aelius Hadrianus Antoninus, Augustus, Pius. Pharmouthi 4th.'

(Second hand) ' I, Thonis, son of Psenephthas, grandson of Psenephthas, have received from my nephew Thonis, son of Hephaestas, grandson of the same [i.e. a Psenephthas], 600 drachmae of silver as capital at interest of a drachma per mina per month from the current month of Pharmouthi and I shall return the interest every month and the capital on the 30th of Phamenoth in the 20th year of Antoninus Caesar, the lord, and if not he will have control of all the shares falling to me in common with my sibs Tasempothe and his father Hephaestas of a house in the western district of the ' Tenth ' quarter, in a blind alley, and of the courtyard and offices and entrances and exits on all the aforesaid conditions as (is) also (aforesaid).'

I adapt. The meaning of this heading escapes me, unless it is the proper name 'Adac (v. Pap. Lugd. Bat. v, Index IV). I owe to a pupil, Mr. W. J. Tait, the suggestion that the reading should be $a\theta\eta$. This has the merit that it could be linked with something in the document, that is, with the name of Athena, and η is a possible alternative to $q\epsilon_1$ though it would be a curious formation with a loop at the top left and a long horizontal serif from the top of the right-hand upright.

3 mupally. New, but possibly intended also in 1550 26, where GH read mupery[c(?) ϵ corr. from .

8 'Iépakoc. This name and that of Martialis do not appear in Calderini, 'Censimento topografico delle banche', Aegyptus xxxviii, pp. 244 ff., among the managers of the wellknown bank at the Serapeum.

9 υπόςχεειν δεδωκότος. Cf. 91 II (πραπέζης) ης υπόςχεεις έδόθη υπό Ἐπιμάχου. The translation of 91 both in the ed. pr. and in Sel. Pap. i, no. 79—' for which E. issued the promise of payment '—is obscure and misleading. Preisigke (WB s.v.) understood it correctly as a bid made for the banking concession.

Verso. The way the endorsement is set out seems to imply the order $\chi(eap \delta \gamma) p(a \phi \omega)$ (Ta)⁷cevrádou dôchoo 'Odávoc' 'Hatarciroc ôtá rozmáľarc čé' śmol(ýng) µcpôw okaňu (sic), and this seems to be completely wild. okuáv is certainly wrong; Ta- in Tacevrádôuv (21, 63) is almost certainly the Egyptian feminine article, implying a woman's name, and there is no difficulty in translating dôchood (21, 62) as ' sibs', v. LSJ. What one seems to require is $\chi(exp$ pdy)(adpow) Odávac dôchood (Ta) ceµrádô(ra) (kal) 'Hatarciroc ôtá rparéľar čé' imol(ýng)µ µepôw oku(ac).
However, I have not discovered the name Taceµraw∂ elsewhere and there does remain the possibility that it is masculine.

2723. SALE OF VINEYARD, ETC.

30 × 22 cm.

Third century

Aurelia Apollonia sells a vineyard and its appurtenances; ownership passes to L. Calpurnius Firmus, a minor, whose father Gaius makes the contract and pays over the price. The contract takes the form of a synchoresis—both parties were citizens of Alexandria, with landed interests near Oxyrhynchus. This copy was never finished: there are two blanks in the text (lines 14 and 16), and the normal address formula is missing before line 1 (the upper margin of 5 cm. gives room for it). Presumably a draft or a duplicate.

The formulae are for the most part familiar : see for example 1276, 1697–1700, especially 1208. Interesting difficulties remain in 13–14 and 18.

'From Lucius Calpurnius Gaius and however he is styled, senator, and formerly eutheniarch and cosmete, of the most illustrious city of the Alexandrians, gymnasiarch and prytanis-in-office of the city of the Oxyrhynchites,

⁶ And from Aurelia Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena, daughter of Publius, citizeness, as of Ptolemais-in-the-Thebaid formerly styled Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena daughter of Publius, mother Apollonia, from the city of the Oxyrhynchi, acting with the guardian assigned to her according to the customs of the Romans, Marcus Aurelius Ammonius also called Geminas, and however he is styled, and from her son :

They agree, Aurelia Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena that she has made convevance to Calpurnius Gaius' son Lucius Calpurnius Firmus, a minor, of property she owns near the village of Souis in the lower toparchy of the Oxyrhynchite nome, part of the estate of Aristodemus-a vineyard with reed-bed, in a state of neglect, and the sites there and the winepress and cask and squeezing machine and the irrigation works appurtenant with the apparatus attached to them, apparatus fitted out with complete wooden fitments and ironwork, and the equipment for these, and everything belonging and appertaining-eleven and three-quarters arourae or whatever the area may be-with the palm trees in it and around it and all the shoots and fruits. Adjoining all this : on the west a depression ; and on the other three sides, land of Calpurnius Gaius. And that Aurelia Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena has (retained ?) nothing for herself on the aforementioned . . . and if anything . . . remaining, this too belongs to the purchaser . . . (price) of the aforementioned (blank) and reed-bed, eleven and three-quarter arourae . . . silver of the imperial coinage drachmae (blank) thousand . . . (which) Aurelia Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena has received on the spot from Calpurnius Gaius . . . (a sum which) he states to be given as a gift (?) to the abovementioned purchaser his minor son . . . Wherefore the abovementioned purchaser Calpurnius Firmus, with his children and his successors, shall from the present moment own and possess the vineyard conveyed to him as above . . . and when he reaches his majority administer and use it as he chooses. Which land Aurelia Apollonia also called Harpocratiaena shall guarantee throughout from everything with every kind of guarantee and free from liability to the cultivation of royal and domain land . . .

Ι Λουκίου Καλπουρνίου Γαίου, 7 Λουκίος Καλπουρνίος Φίρμος: the same family (Alexandrians with estates at Oxyrhynchus) appears in other third-century documents: PSI 1252: Aurelius Calpurnius Firmus, former cosmete and eutheniarch of Alexandria; PSI 1255: Calpurnius Firmus, former cosmete, antarchidicast and . . . of Alexandria; PSI 1255: Lucius Calpurnius Firmus. The third of these might well be our Firmus; so might the second, if he is not too early (the document mentions an Aur. Horion who is otherwise attested in A.D. 202 and 209). Gaius' purchase removed an enclave in his existing estates (lines 12-13).

 $_3$ derfic: citizeness of Alexandria, the normal meaning of the word (the contrary instances are textually doubtful: Arangio-Ruiz, Rev. int. des Droits d'Ant. 4 (1950), pp. 1 seqq.). The formula contrasts her official style at Alexandria with her style earlier at Ptolemais: there is a similar phrase at M. Chr. 290. 2, which should be similarly interpreted (P. Merton i 5. 2, note). For the change of style compare, e.g., P. Baden 72, where Psenamounis acquires Roman citizenship by military service. Harpocratiaena seems to have acquired both Alexandria and Roman citizenship since her days in Ptolemais: Roman citizenship by the Constitutio Antoniniana, presumably.

2724. RECEIPT FOR PART OF A WATER-WHEEL 125

9 ετεμφυλουργικόν : again P. Oslo iii 145. 3.

13 υπ εναι: the same formula in PSI 1255. 10-11 άλλο υ[____]κεναι έαυτοῖς [έ]κ τοῦ αὐτοῦ κλήρου τὸ μὴ ὑποςτέλλον τῆ εἰς αὐτὸν κα[ταγραφή]. I cannot read ὑπολελοιπέναι. In 13-14 e.g. προκειμέ[νης] χιας ὅ μ[ὴ ὑπ]ρ[cτέλλει (though the first π is curiously narrow).

15] : e.g. τ_{μ} [pc (not]9y]. After $\pi_{\rho\sigma\sigmaeeu}[\epsilon']_{\rho\nu}$ there is a blank of c. 11 letters ; after $\mu_{\nu\rho\nu}$ in 16 a blank of c. 20 letters. In 16 no doubt the exact sum was to be inserted later. But why the gap in 15 ? The property is fully described elsewhere in the document.—In 6 the indentation leaves room for the name of Apollonia's son.

17 αὐτόθι ἀπέςχεν: different constructions might stand in the supplement, see, e.g., 1699 8 and 1700 5.

18-19 The general sense of this clause is clear: the father must state explicitly that the money paid over for the land is a present from him to his son (otherwise he himself becomes the legal owner of the estate): see Pringsheim, Greek Law of Sale, pp. 217-19, and especially 1208 16-17. The details are difficult. 1208 reads: adróth datexov maph coo bid root adrot marphic cov de addpose did yetpóc, damoyacóbé cos de mocchegn karlà làfou d'adéforov kal differatófmov. It seems to me likely that mpocépacy should be interpreted as mpocépagn-é donated to you, as you state, . . .'; and that 2723 had mpocépagi-relation the same sense. (I cannot read mpoc- in 2723, or mpo- in 1208.) But observe that the subject here would be the father, not the son as in 1208. The preceding word ended in -be, but the traces do not suggest damoxlapitot. In 19 [kard xápu damadaferov kal dueraván]rov suits the space and is not excluded by the traces.

23-5 continue the guarantee : for 23 cf., e.g., 1700 14-15 (there is no space for $dm \delta \tau \epsilon$ $dmoypa\phi \tilde{\eta} \epsilon du \delta p \tilde{\omega} v$ as at 1697 24-5); for 25, e.g., 1208 21. I have found no parallel to explain 24.

'To Flavia Cyria, most illustrious and most noble landowner in the illustrious and most illustrious city of the Oxyrhynchites, Aurelius Pasoerius, son of Cornelius, and Aurelius John, son of Phoebammon, registered farmers from the hamlet of Chaira(s?), a property of your Magnificence in the same nome. Since even now the need has arisen for an axle for the estate water-wheel in our charge called Pso, which waters arable land, we came up to the city and asked your Illustriousness that it be provided and directly your Nobility provided us with the said axle for a water-wheel, new and in good condition, to complete the machinery of the water-wheel, which axle we received today, which is the 22nd of Phaophi of the eighth indiction, but in the farming season for the minth epinemesis, and we declare with mutual guarantees that we will perform the water-drawing and the distribution of water blamelessly. The contract, of which there is a single copy, is valid and in answer to the formal question we gave our assent.

'We, Aurelius Pascerius, son of Cornelius, and Aurelius John, son of Phoebammon, made the contract after receiving the new axle and everything satisfies us, as is aforesaid. I, Aurelius Sarapammon, son of Theon, wrote on their behalf because they are illiterate.

2725. LETTER TO ADRASTUS AND SPARTACUS 127

2725. LETTER TO ADRASTUS AND SPARTACUS

16×13·3 cm.

29th April, A.D. 71

This letter has lost its opening, but the addressees are named on the back : 'Aδράcτ ψ νί ϕ ... κa (παρτάκωι ἀδελφωι. Each line of the text has suffered some damage at the beginning; the gaps can be estimated from the certain supplements in 17–18. The hand is a fluent cursive, typical of its period.

The writer finds himself in a major city, very probably Alexandria. He writes mostly about private business—trading, legal processes, pig-fodder. But at 18 he turns to a public event : 'the lord Caesar entered on the 30th at the 2nd hour . . .'. This date would most naturally be the 30th next before the date of the letter, i.e. 30 Pharmouthi or 25th April, A.D. 71. And the Caesar must be Titus.

Titus passed through Egypt on his way home from the Jewish war. He embarked at Alexandria for Rome (Josephus, BJ vii 5. 3); on the way to Alexandria he visited Memphis (Suet. Titus 5). The chronology is ill-defined. Titus had been at Berytus on his father's birthday, r7th November, 70 (BJvii 3. r). He travelled through Syria as far as Zeugma, then returned through Antioch and Jerusalem and so across the desert to Alexandria (BJ vii 5. r-3). Chambalu (Philologus 44 (1885), p. 507) estimated the travelling-time required for such an itinerary, and concluded that Titus cannot have reached Alexandria before 6th May, 7r. But the estimate is naturally fallible. Nothing here forbids us to suppose that Titus was in Egypt in late April. Thence he set out for Rome, and for the Jewish triumph, which he celebrated a few days after his arrival (BJ vii 5. 3)—in June, according to the normal supposition.

All in all, it seems safe to conclude that Titus Caesar made his entrance into Alexandria towards 7 o'clock on the morning of 25th April, A.D. 71.

The text and notes below owe much to the help of Professor H. C. Youtie.

2 ρ : the first trace suggests η (less probably π); the last is a curve consistent with a, o, ω . One might expect the name of a material sold by weight.

3-4 'and a further 20 dr. if it is delivered to Oxyrhyncha'. In 4 probably $\kappa \alpha r \sigma^2 (cra \theta_1^2)$, In 3 perhaps $\kappa \alpha l \alpha \nu$, though the trace looks more like λ than ν . 6 For $C[\iota] \rho lawooc$ compare 1044 10; not $C[\upsilon] \rho lawooc$, for the gap is wide enough only

6 For $C[\iota]_{\rho}(\iota_{\nu\nu\sigma\epsilon} \text{ compare 1044 10}; \text{ not } C[\upsilon]_{\rho}(\iota_{\nu\nu\sigma\epsilon}, \text{ for the gap is wide enough only for <math>\iota$ or o. 'Icyte might be 'Icyte, related to 'Icyte and 'Icyte and 'Icyte and Capation' diverse is a more likely nickname: an hetaera is so called in Menander, Colax fr. 4 K.

7] cw: $ex = ex - t\theta \eta cw$ (Youtie) gives the right sense ; but I cannot find a reading which squares with the traces.

2726. LETTER OF PANECHOTES TO HEPHAESTION 129

10 $\delta \pi a p \Delta k \eta roc$: the word seems not to have appeared in the papyri, except as a suspect emendation in BGU 601. 12 (see BL iv 5). It may mean 'advocate'; more usually 'one who supports a party in court by simply being present there'. (See Kittel, Theolog. Wörterbuch, s.v.) It seems that proceedings under Spartacus' anaphorion were to begin in two days' time; meanwhile they have still to track down an essential supporter. 12 downorder at '

II-I2 $e^{i\nu} \tau a \hat{c} \delta v c i \eta \mu \ell [pace: the letter was written on the 4th (23); something is to happen on the 6th (15).$

14-16 The restoration in 16 seems plausible enough: the same phrase occurs in 2 Corinthians viii 4. We need a plural subject for $\epsilon i c \omega$, perhaps a noun ending in $-\epsilon e \epsilon a \omega$, $-\rho \theta \mu \epsilon e \epsilon r a$ suits the traces best (θ is certain). I can think of nothing better than $\delta m \sigma \theta \eta \kappa e r a a$: mortgagers might well have money to hand over, but the word would be new and without congeners.

15 The first letter was o or ω , e.g. 14–15 $\delta \delta \epsilon \mid \check{\omega}[\nu]$. The direct speech might end here, or continue.

19 καμ[ca]ρ: a and ι are very probable, ρ vestigial.

 $[\delta]_{pac}$ β : the second hour in Alexandria would be 6.37 to 7.42 A.M., according to Ginzel's table (2678 4 note).

20 ε ε[: εχε[Or επε[.

] $\tau \alpha v$: the trace is two spots of ink high in the line, perhaps the remains of an upright : -ama $\nu \tau \omega v$ looks possible.

21] v:]av Or]ev.

19-21 Youtie reconstructs the sense thus: $\pi\rho\tilde{\omega}rov ev \pi\omega\rho\epsilon\mu\beta\delta\lambda\tilde{\eta}$, $e\pi\rho[ur^{2}drm]vr\tilde{a}v$ (for $a\pi\omega r\tilde{\omega}v$) ele Capamíov $d\pi\delta$ rol Capamíov ele $\tau[\delta]$ $[\pi\pi u\kappa\delta[v d\pi\tilde{\eta}\lambda\delta]v$. 'Camp' and 'Serapeum' raise no difficulties. $i\pi\pi u\kappa\delta v$ normally means 'cavalry': here it should have a topographical reference, perhaps 'hippodrome' (Audollent, Tabulae Defixionum 187. 59 ev $\tau\tilde{\omega}$ $i\pi\pi u\kappa\tilde{\omega}$ 'Pedunc: Sophocles, Greek Lexicon of the Roman and Byzantine Periods, s.v.).

What city is 'this? Memphis and Alexandria both had a camp and a Serapeum. General probability no doubt favours Alexandria; and imusón, if it means 'hippodrome', is decisive. Titus followed a natural route, from the camp at Nicopolis through the Canopic gate to the Serapeum; then retraced his steps through the Canopic gate to the Hippodrome (which stood on the road to Nicopolis, Strabo xvii I. ro).

21 dκτα is a certain reading. The transliterated form of Latin acta is known from inscriptions and literature of the Roman period, where it retains the strict sense of formal 'proceedings', judicial or administrative—thus dκτα ILλάνου (Justin ap. Migne, PG 6. 384 c, etc.); dκτα βουλής (OGI 595. 20, journal of the Tyrian senate, A.D. 174); dκτα της πόλωως (Malalas 443. 20, records of Antioch). Here, I suppose, dκτα των τιμών is the official record of his reception'. But I find no parallel closer than acta triumphorum.

21-2 αναπλευ ςο[: 1. άναπλεύςω?

] ____μa: not] _____uau (ἀcπάζομαι). ἐπικο]ποῦμαι (Youtie) looks possible, but the traces are too uncertain to confirm it fully.

2726. LETTER OF PANECHOTES TO HEPHAESTION

7 × 30 cm.

Second century

This little business letter is entirely concerned with the local registration of two legal documents which have already been registered in Alexandria. The recipient of the letter is asked to present the contracts and the certificates VOL, XXXIV K of their registration in the central archives to a local notarial office and to obtain a certificate of local registration. It appears, though the wording is not explicit, that the local registration is to be made either at a bank or at a notarial office, designated by the new word $vo\mu o \gamma \rho a \phi e i o v$. The writer encloses 32 drachmae for expenses but makes provision for a further advance if that should not be enough.

The writing appears to be of the second century.

'Panechotes to the much-esteemed Hephaestion, alias Sarapion, greeting. I have already shown you the love I have for you, and now I beg you, lord, not to neglect my request. For to the man who delivers the letter to you I have given two centrally registered documents and the letters for them and 32 drachmae. So after arranging their local registration quickly, as your custom is, you will give (them) to him or to whatever other safe messenger you approve at the bank of Didymus by the land-registry office or at the notarial office under Heracleides. So whatever you spend you shall report. And if anything is wanting for the scribe's fees my friend will give it to you and I shall give it back to him. Fare well, my lord, with all your household.'

27 νομο/γραφίον. The word is new, though the meaning is to a certain extent obvious, i.e. 'the office of the νομογράφοι', on whom see Mitteis, Gdz. p. 56 n. 7.

The natural implication is that the local registration could take place equally well through the bank or the notary's office. Strictly speaking the writer only says that delivery of the completed dossier should be made at one of these two places, and perhaps the phrasing should not be pressed beyond that.

2727. LETTER FROM BASSUS (?) TO EULOGIUS

9×26 cm. Third/fourth century

This letter contains an interesting invitation to a holiday trip out of town during the hot weather but is otherwise unremarkable. The verso is blank and there is no address. A possible explanation of this is that both writer and recipient were in Oxyrhynchus, as $\frac{\partial}{\partial n}\partial \eta \mu \hat{\eta} cau$ (13) implies, and the delivery was therefore such a simple matter that no address was required. Some letters without addresses were perhaps enclosed in parcels (cf. 2599 introd.), but that is not indicated here.

The hand is probably of the late third or early fourth century, and the names Eulogius and Gerontius also suggest the early Byzantine period.

'Bassus (?) to Eulogius, his brother, greeting. You will do me a favour if you speak to Amois about the share of the house that falls to him and report to me how much the price is; and the same to Apollonius and Theodorus. But see you don't neglect it, brother. For, as you know, the need is pressing. I think that the idea of getting away seems reasonable to you too, since the weather is already getting hot. So if you have any matter in hand, settle it, so that if nothing interferes, we may set out on the tenth. If it is not inconvenient for you, go quickly to Theon the cobbler and to Gerontius and make them come to me along with the man who brings you this letter, and also Dioscurides, the goldsmith. And write to me at all events.

' I pray for your health, my lord brother, with all your house for a very long time.'

I Bácoc. The Roman name Bassus ? Cf. SB 4125. 5.

7 'Aπολλω νίου και Θεοδώρου. I have taken the genitive as a mistake for the dative, but even this is ambiguous, since it would not be clear whether they depend on $\delta \eta \lambda \omega cac$ or, as seems better, on Sundycac. The genitive seems intolerably elliptic, but perhaps the phrase should be translated ' and (do) likewise (in regard to the shares) of A. and T.'.

10 oldac. See Moulton-Howard, Grammar of New Testament Greek, pp. 220 f.

13 λοιπόν ήδη. λοιπόν is used in a temporal sense, as the equivalent of ήδη; λ. ήδη is a known pleonasm; see the examples in Tabachovitz, Études sur le grec de la basse époque, p. 32.

2728. LETTER FROM CAPITOLINUS TO SARAPAMMON 133

2728. Letter from Capitolinus to Sarapammon 14×25 cm.

Third/fourth century

The chief interest of this item and the following one lies in the occurrence of the word $c\dot{\alpha}\mu\beta\alpha\theta\sigma\nu$ (33 and 2729 9) in contexts which allow us to conclude that it was a container, probably an earthenware pot. It seems quite clear that at least some of the four passages collected in CPJ iii, no. 457 a-d as references to the Sabbath made use of this word in this sense. Only one, 457 d =903 19, absolutely resists this interpretation. The same word is probably to be recognized in 1290 I cáμαθον ελέ[ov ?. I

The letter is mostly devoted to matters of business but at the beginning there is an interesting development, unfortunately damaged and otherwise not perfectly lucid, of the routine complaint of not having had a letter lately.

The sheet of papyrus is made up of fragments joined together and is virtually complete, but a few very small pieces are lost. In other places the surface is rubbed. The verso appears to be blank but it is badly discoloured in the region where an address might be expected.

I have since noted that the word has also appeared in PSI 829. 21. Perhaps cáuparov olivou (PSI 1423. 23) is only a variant spelling. Professor Youtie has now told me that the identity of cámabor, cámbabor and cámparor had been suggested to him earlier by Mrs. Ann Hanson. He adds that it may be intended in O. Mich. 249, ll. 2-10, headed Noyoc owou 2/ cap(). For the reading see TAPA 76 (1945), pp. 140-2, where he proposed to read a part of $cd\mu(\omega\nu)$. He also refers me to the Coptic CAMAGE = cistern, $\delta\epsilon\xia\mu\epsilon\nu\eta$, and compares the word LARKON used as a measure and perhaps related to $\lambda \acute{\alpha} \kappa \kappa \sigma c$; see Crum and Bell, Wadi Sarga, p. 23.

'Capitolinus to Sarapammon, his brother, greeting. Before all I pray for your health with (that of) your children and your wife before the lord God. I am surprised that even now when Horigenes comes to me you let me know nothing about anything. I know that I weigh heavily upon you. Let part be set aside (?). For among philosophers silence is an answer. Could not I too refuse to answer ? But all the same I . . . writing (and ?) . . . when I receive your letter(s ?) . . . And I think that is proper to write you what the man receives and what he pays out. Even before this I wrote you an itemized account (and sent it) by Didymus; now too I write it.

'Item. When (they ?) came to Egypt . . . Horigenes, 10 spathia of wine, as I wrote, sold at 1,800 dr., total 3 talents. And for the month of Pachon . . . spathia of very old (wine) and for the month of Payni another 3 spathia. And of these 20 spathia were sold in the same way as all (the rest ?) at 1,600 dr., total 5 talents 2,000 dr. And for the month of Mesore, on the 6th, another 10 spathia at 1,700 dr., total 2 talents 5,000 dr. Total for these forty spathia, 11 talents 1,000 dr., apart from the arrears which 1 have communicated to you before.

2729. LETTER FROM DIOSCURIDES TO AQUILEUS 135

'Now too accept delivery through the same Horigenes for the same month of Mesore another 10 spathia of wine. Let these too be sold at 1,700 dr. So then send the price of these to me in a sealed purse. . . For there is a shortage of cash. The price of my orders will be deducted from your previous arcears. And receive through the same messenger for your own consumption a jar of oil, 1 chous and a half. If you can, send off 2 ounces of pepper and a jar of pickled mullet with my previous orders. And send off half a chous of honey. As for all the details of the price do not hesitate . . . to write to me about everything. If in your district oil is fetching more than wine, let me know. (I greet) all our friends by name. I pray for your health.'

8 dmorayfi μ fpoc. I find this very abrupt and puzzling. Literally, 'Let part be set aside'. Does he intend, 'I don't mean all I say'? But the sequence of thought to the next sentence is then obscure.

9 mapà pilocópo[1c]. Possibly -[v]? 'Silence from a philosopher is an answer?'

10-12 The surface is abraded here and some small fragments are missing. The thought may be, 'But nevertheless I go on writing to you and answer when I get your letters '.

16 The interlineation is rubbed and illegible to me and its intended position in the sentence is not clear. The gap in the line is not wide enough for $\delta \omega$. $\delta \omega$ area ωroo ωroo area $\delta \omega$ to suit. The case of $\pi \rho \alpha \delta \sigma \sigma \omega$ to suggest that $\omega \sigma \omega$ refers to goods rather than people but the grammar is puzzling.

elc Alyumrov. Probably from Alexandria rather than from anywhere that we would regard as outside Egypt.

22 5. Presumably the day is specified at this point only because this letter accompanies a second shipment for the month of Mesore, see 25 seq.

28 ecopayicuévor. Read -nv or -w.

έν τραχαίοις. This seems to be new. The next sentence suggests that he is asking either for cash or for quick delivery. τροχίας means a messenger (Hesych.) and τροχίας χαλκός means cast bronze (Poll. vii 105). One of these may be relevant; τραχώς seems not to be.

 $31 \beta \omega | \ell \omega$. Cf. 2596 8 and note. The doubtful letter is represented by a stroke rising from below to the foot of iota.

35 Read πάντα (τά) τ[ής τ]μής?

36 δήλωςον [. If the whole of the margin was used, there was room for about 15 letters; e.g. [μου ἀσπάζομαι τοὺς.

2729. LETTER FROM DIOSCURIDES TO AQUILEUS

18×27 cm.

Fourth century

Apart from the occurrence of the word $\epsilon \dot{\alpha} \mu \beta a \theta o \nu$ (9, see 2728 Introd.), this letter is full of novelties relating to currency, weights and measures. Unfortunately the unreliable spelling and grammar increase the difficulties of understanding them, and it abounds in such vulgar bye-forms as $\ddot{\epsilon}\beta a\lambda a$ (18), $\dot{\epsilon}|\pi\lambda\eta\rho\omega\kappa a$ (21), $\delta\eta\epsilon$ ($=\delta\hat{\omega}\epsilon$ 23), $\dot{d}\phi\eta\kappa\epsilon\epsilon$ (imperative ? 30).

Another peculiarity is the presence of a rough breathing (39), since they are relatively rare in documents (e.g. P. Fay. 122, P. Strassb. 169, P. Ryl. 624, 122, 2711) and this document has no claim to any of the literary accomplishments with which lectional signs are usually associated.

The sheet of papyrus is broken into two across the middle between lines II and I2, but the resultant damage is slight.

'To my lord brother Aquileus Dioscurides sends greetings in the Lord. Before all I pray to the lord God about your health. I wonder why up to the present day you have sent me not a single letter. Whether (you are) well or ill (?), spend two silver coins and write to me. Receive off the ship of our bishop Theodorus from Elias the sailor one sambalhon containing 2,700 myriads (of drachmae). Likewise receive off the ship of Abanes, a private ship, another (pot), one double knidion containing another 4,000 myriads (of drachmae) in cash. Together the two pots total I myriad of talents, 700 myriads (of drachmae). Likewise receive off the same ship of Abanes two hundredweight of iron, the two containing 48 matia. Take shares therefore, you and my brother Dioscorus, and I shall send you others again. For the price of them to-day is 200 myriads (of drachmae) and there are none to be had. I loaded them on the ship during the night. Likewise I have sent you by the ship of Horigenes, son of Heras, I omphakera of first-class wine (?), so that you have bought 25 omphakerae so far. I have already paid him in full for the pots as far as the delivery of them is concerned. So do not give him anything. If you receive these things, write to me. And I have heard that you and John have . . . appointed headmen (?). So buy containers together, you and Dioscorus, and send them to me quickly. But do not be negligent, my lord brother. Buy fine containers together and send containers to me, either the local litra, or . . . litra, or konkhismata or bronze vessels or spathia or at any rate do not abandon me. I sit idly alone. For I am in our storehouse. For I cannot stir from my storehouse. Everything you want has been bought at great expense. They are currently circulating in the storehouses at 25 silver coins the litron of 16 (?) ounces and at 20 silver coins the local litron of thirteen ounces, the konkhisma of the first $[a' = (\pi \rho \omega \tau o v), \text{ or } same', a' = a(\dot{v} \tau o v)$?] ... at 38 myriads (of drachmae), the argon (?) at 3?? (?) myriads (of drachmae), the spathion at 50 and 52 myriads (of drachmae), the bronze pot of the . . . at 850 myriads of talents, 100 talents. Everything you want has been acquired. Send me a cloth (?) and I shall send you cash. The solidus to-day stands at 730 myriads (of drachmae). If you please, send me a spathion of fish sauce and a jar of pickles. Many greetings to Helene and Choous with their mother Hanu. And say to my brother Amys, "Do not believe that I am your enemy". If you wish to send (a letter ?), . . . opportunity. I pray for your health.'

(Address) ' Deliver to Aquileus from his brother Dioscurides.'

6 $\mathfrak{e}_i^* \operatorname{campà} \mathfrak{e}_i^* \operatorname{campà} \mathfrak{e}_i^* \operatorname{campà} \mathfrak{e}_i^*$ καλά. I naturally feel some doubt about this cryptic expression, but I cannot do better with the letters. Possibly the neuter plural of the adjectives has an adverbial force—' whether things go well or ill, write ..., '--or possibly it refers to some goods the writer and recipient were dealing in—' write (and tell) me if they were rotten or good'.¹

äpyupa. Not yet in WB, but see P. Strasb. 330. 3. I do not know what silver coin is referred to. It may be the same as the miliarense, v. Epiphanius, mepi μέτρων καl cradµων, ch. 24 (184A) τό δè äpyupov τοῦτό ἐ cruv δ ol Ψωμαῖοι μλιαρίcιον καλοῦιοι τ. Cf. Du Cange, s.v. δφνυρόν. The τοῦτο may imply, what seems not unlikely, that more than one coin was called äpyupov, and the miliarense is itself not certainly identified with surviving coins, v. Mickwitz, Die Systeme des rom. Silbergeldes im IV. Jahrh. n. Chr., pp. 28-31. Another possibility is the siliqua (κεράτιον), probably much like Diocletian's argenteus (ibid. p. 9), with which there mich be a verbal equivalence also.

I think that no conclusion about the cost of postage could be drawn even if we could identify the coins, because it is not clear whether two $d\rho\gamma\nu\rho a$ would cover all the charges for materials, services of a scribe and carriage. The writer obviously implies that it was cheap.

12 [.] . The calculation requires ralávrav $\mu\nu\rho\mu dc a' \kappa a \mu\nu\rho(id \delta c \delta \rho a \chi \mu \hat{u} \nu) \psi \lambda$, but I have not understood how ralávrav $\mu\nu\rho\mu dc$ was written. It was not as below in line 17. The third trace from the end may be a δ , suggesting perhaps an oblique case of $\mu\nu\rho\mu dc$.

14 κενδ(). Also in Pap. Lugd. Bat. xi 1. 19.

¹ A new possibility is suggested by P. Yale 79, where campóc is applied to coins. Here it may agree with $d_{\rho\gamma\nu\rho\alpha}$, with the implication that the money spent on the letter need not even be in good coin.

τέως. Perhaps = $\gamma \epsilon$, v. Tabachovitz, Études, pp. 70 seqq.

15 μάδια. Cf. P. Teb. 314. 18 n., P. Cair. Isid. 71. 12 n.

18 ένι. Cf. P. Amh. 143. 5 (p. 175) τροφία οὐκ ένι τοῖς βόες.

20 ομφακηρά. See 1870 12-13 n. and P. Abinn. 31. 13 n.

 $\pi \rho \omega \tau (\epsilon lov)$. If this is right the order of words is odd.

23 dyc. Equals doc, cf. 2599 34 n.

25 The meaning of this sentence is very much obscured by the lack of grammatical accuracy. The readings are clear. έcráκατα: according to Mayser 12 ii, p. 147, έcτακα is only used transitively, cf. Moulton-Howard, Grammar of N.T. Greek, p. 241. co. καl 'luáwrou: it seems that the cases should be the same. εrrae requires correction; etra{e} [s seems simplest, but is hard to translate unless it turns the statement into a question. Read perhaps έcráκατα e'd καl 'luáwroc e'ra κεφαλαιωτάς, 'you and John have appointed headmen again', but it seems more likely that they were appointed than that they made the appointment. For κεφαλαιωτα a see Oertel, Die Liturgie, pp. 225 seqq.

27 $\epsilon t \delta \eta$. This appears to refer to types of container, which were also measures of capacity; cf. CPR 232. II seq. arhyrucob [kiddow kai $\delta re[por]$ $\epsilon t \delta o - \chi a \lambda c \omega \mu d \tau \omega r \delta v \delta a \phi \delta \rho o c \epsilon t \delta \epsilon c \omega \epsilon c \kappa v \omega r - shows how the usage arose. It is not quite clear whether the containers are filled or not. If so, the contents may be wine.$

29 λ(τρα?) χωρικά η λ(τρα?) τρ(). The neuter form λ(τρον is known from P. Fay. 331 verso λ(τρον όγροθ, where it appears to be a liquid measure. Compare PSI 837. 8 for χωρικών and a neuter version of λ(τρα—τ) Μενδήςιον λ(τριν. The unresolved abbreviation seems to be a monogram of m_0 , or possibly π with a long vertical intersecting it.

The κόγχισμα appears to be new, cf. κόγχη (Hultsch, Metrologie, p. 636) and κόγγιον (ibid, p. 118).

30 αφηκες. Apparently for ἄφες. The punctuation in this line and the following is uncertain. BGU 1078. 7 ἀργόν . . . καθηςθα, cf. P. Brem. 13. 5, suggests a stop before ἀργώς (perhaps read ἀργός). The next stop may belong before μώνος rather than after it.

32 caleυθήναι. Simply ' to stir '; cf. PSI 299. 4 κατεςχέθην νόοω, ώστε μη δύνασθαι caleύεσθαι. ayopacrai. ηγόραcrai seems closest, but dyopáζεται may be intended.

33 . The doubtful figure is a rounded one. If the ounce is the same size in both cases, the proportion of the prices (20/25) suggests of ; i_5 is a possibility, also perhaps δ .

34 seq. $\vec{\tau} \delta$ κόνχιςζμα τοῦ α' δε'". I have not understood this or the perhaps related expression in 35 seq. $\tau \delta$ χάλκωμα τοῦ α' κεδ()—or κεδι(). Possible explanations of a' are (ένδς), (πρώτου), (πρότερον), and αίδτοῦ).

35 τὸ aφ or. The doubtful letter appears to be χ or τ , but I have not found a receptacle or measure so spelt. Perhaps compare Coptic opt ω N P. Lond. 1631 v 3, with note on ii 2; perhaps also PSI 837. 7 τὸ ἀργὸν δεςμίδων.

 $\mu\nu\rho()$ ν' $\kappa a \nu\beta'$. The two prices for this measure alone are puzzling.

37 καταπλοιν. New. Possibly = καθάπλωμα.

 $ro \nu o \mu \ell \mu d \tau i o v \dots \mu v \rho() \psi \lambda'$. There are still too few exchange rates of this kind to establish the date at all closely. It should be well within the fourth century, cf. 1223 31 seqq.

2730. LETTER FROM HORION

9 × 14·4 cm. Fourth century

An incoherent letter whose matter is of some interest. A water-wheel has been stolen ; Horion suspects the village police of wilful negligence, and asks Heraclius to send down an order for their arrest ' at the petition of Sarapion the gymnasiarch'; he himself will escort them (to Oxyrhynchus). The local police, that is, could be held responsible for their negligence and taken into custody for questioning: the same situation in P. Gron. p. 53 (and cp. Oertel, Die Liturgie, p. 267). Sarapion no doubt owned the estate from which the wheel had been stolen, Horion was his agent. What is remarkable is the procedure. Normally the official addressed (perhaps the strategus) would answer Sarapion's petition with an order-to-arrest sent to the police. Here the agent applies privately to a minor official, whose superior is to seal a warrant authorizing the agent to arrest the police. A tribute to the gymnasiarch's influence.

2731. LETTER FROM MAXIMUS

'Horion to his very dear Heraclius, greetings. Let him seal me a warrant against the authorities of Enteiis (since a water-wheel of ours has been stolen in the country)—the estate-guard and the officers of the peace and the head-policeman—on the petition of Sarapion the gymnasiarch, so that I can bring them up on the tenth when I come up. See to it, since they have contempt enough for our house in every matter, especially this head-policeman. I have sent the corn by Pekysis the donkey-driver. I pray for your health.'

3 τιπλωμάτιον: δίπλωμα may be any official paper, here no doubt an order-to-arrest (the characteristic formula ἐντυχόντος... in 10–11). The diminutive does not appear in the WB or in LSJ.

 $c\phi\rho\alpha\gamma\nu|c\phi\tau\omega$: the surviving orders-to-arrest sometimes carry a seal, see 2576 introduction. The subject of the imperative is not made explicit: very probably the strategus.

4-10 $\delta\eta\mu\sigma|cd\sigma\nu\sigma$: on the village authorities see P. Achmim, pp. 61 seqq.—the lists include $\eta\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma$, $d\sigma\chi\epsilon\phi\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma$, and various other police officials. Presbyteri were probably extinct in the fourth century (J. Lallemand, L'Administration, p. 134 n. 6): so it is not clear whether Horion enumerates all the $\delta\eta\mu\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma$ in 7 seqq. or merely specifies some of them. In normal circumstances (e.g. P. Cair. Isid. 129. 2) the $\delta\eta\mu\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma\sigma$ carry out arrests; here they are arrested, as perhaps at P. Abinn. 29. 11.

5 Evrelewe : in the Upper Toparchy, 1659 15 note.

17-18 I have translated this on the assumption that roorov rov doxted works is a mistake for the nominative. But it may be better to put a stop before $\mu a \lambda(\lambda) ov$, assuming that the accusative construction is resumed from 7-10.

Verso. A single line by a different hand. I cannot deciphre it.

'To my lady mother Zenobia, Maximus, greetings in the lord God. Now at last I have the opportunity which I have prayed for of finding someone who is visiting you and of greeting your inimitable disposition. Greet my wife Salamai from me. My mother Rufina sends her best wishes to you. Greet my brothers from me, each by name. Once, twice, three times I have told you to send my wife, and you have refused. Well now exert yourself night and day to send my wife. For . . . of my visiting you. You too have known for a long time that my lord the praepositus is not releasing anyone. I implore you, write back to me about your health so that my heart may be lightened without delay (?). I greet all those who love you, each by name. I pray you may have good health for many years.'

9-10 απαξ και δις και τρίς: this phrase probably belongs with δδήλωςα, not with πρόςειπε (8). Cf. SB 9013. 4 δδήλωςά οιι απαξ και δεύτερον κ.τ.λ.

14 κλέος: the first letter is κ, rather than ε; unless the word continued from line 13, κλέος seems inevitable, however unexpected. Cf. perhaps 2407 53-4 τοῦτό μου [ἔ]πωνος και κλέος deτ[1]ν, [πλέ]ρψ [ἀğθιψφ[ῦ]ν κ.τ.λ. After ẻστν, και is fairly clear. At the end the traces suggest -δρέμα; before δ, a malformed letter which comes closest to γ. ειδοξία would suppose an anomalous hypsilon. The sentence probably ended with πρόε ὑμαε in 15: for πάλαι μέν cf. 1593 9; the trace is against πάλαι č[λλά. The general drift may be: 'I glory in visiting you, but you know that I can't get away'. But, as Turner remarks, τοῦ μὴ παράτρα or τοῦ (μή) με παράναι makes easier sense: 'my good name depends on my staying here and not visiting you'. (The alternative 'She is my pride and joy. As for my visiting you . . .' makes a difficult construction.) Cf. SB 9286. 5-6 χαρά καὶ δόξα μου γόνεται μαθών τὴν ὑνίειαν ὑμῶν πάντων.

19 $i \pi \epsilon_{\rho} \theta \epsilon_{\mu e \rho o c}$ is odd: a variant of the common márra $i \pi \epsilon_{\rho} \theta \epsilon_{\mu e \rho o c}$? (But it cannot apply to Zenobia unless the genders are muddled.) At the end perhaps $\epsilon_{\partial} \theta \nu_{\mu} h_{c \omega \mu} [a (for the middle cf. P. Herm. Rees 5, 29).$

2732. BUSINESS LETTER 30 × 25 cm.

Sixth century (?)

This Byzantine business letter mentions places in the Delta and was probably sent from there to Oxyrhynchus sometime in the sixth century. To judge from the vulgar Greek the writer was not of very high rank but he delivered a letter to a tribune and wanted his information to reach a certain count.

'Immediately upon (?) my arrival in Pelusium I delivered your Excellency's letter to the tribune Aphthonius and after reading it he spoke, saying, "I received all the stores in full. . . . But since I believe that the biscuit and the salt fish and other goods disappeared and God alone knows that I tried long ago to load them on a boat, and it was for this reason ---so that they should not be set upon by the sailors---that I did not send them off. So if his Excellency pleases to send a man of his own I shall hand over these goods immediately." And the lord Aphthonius said, "I shall pay the freight charges of the boat also ". So if it pleases your Highness to send one of the slaves, these goods shall be sent off. The same man pays his respects to your Excellency.

As for your friend, when I delivered the letter he read it and said, "I owe nothing". And the lord Theognostus spoke to him too and he said, "I owe nothing ". But when we were in the lock, he said, "At Thmouis I shall settle accounts with your Honour".

'So far (?) no-one has arrived from the all-happy city of Constantinople. If anyone comes I shall ask for news of the affairs of the lord the count, and write to your Highness. And I hope in the lord God that you (?) walk in joy. Report these same things to the lord the count.'

2 πάραψτα τοῦ ἀπαντήcal με. A very rare usage, to judge from the single reference in LSJ, but the traces seem to suit.

4 έφεςεν = έφηςεν. Cf. P. Masp. 67087. II for έφηςα = έφη ; cf. P. Gen. 76. II for έφη λέγων; cf. Mayser I, p. 64 for $\epsilon = \eta$.

5 βουκ(κ) $\epsilon\lambda\lambda\lambda$ arov. Not in WB; v. Sophocles, Lexicon. The meaning and the grammar of this sentence are not clear. αυτά (6) apparently refers not to βουκκελλάτου etc., but further back to red apirá. The grammar is slightly improved by omitting the rai at the beginning of line 7, but the expression is still confused. I think the direct speech of Aphthonius continues to the first $\pi a \rho \epsilon_{\chi \omega}$ in line 9.

12 areyvor. This seems to contain a substitution of -or for -w, taken over from the phenomenon familiar in the subjunctive (cf. P. Mich. 510. 24 n.), and therefore I suppose άνέγνω, rather than ἀνέγνων, is meant, even though παραςχ(ηκ)ώς then has to be taken as a nominative absolute.

13 $\zeta \epsilon i \langle \gamma \rangle \mu a \tau i$. Mr. Skeat suggests that the reference might be to Zeugma on the Euphrates.

14 réwc. Possibly not temporal, but simply the equivalent of quidem or certe, cf. Tabachovitz, Études, pp. 70 ff.

15 ή δέ έλθη τις. Cf. Horn, The Subjunctive, p. 64.

περιεργάζομαι. Cf. Tabachovitz, Études, pp. 69 f. for the meaning 'enquire', 'ask for news '.

16 έρχετε. The subject is probably το υμέτερον μέγεθος, but just possibly δ κύριος δ κόμες.
